At the end of the session, participants will be able to:

1. Identify and differentiate between technical work and adaptive challenges.
2. Understand the difference between the role of authority and the exercise of leadership.
3. Understand the importance of maintaining a productive level of tension so progress can be made on adaptive work.
4. Understand the concept of work avoidance as it applies to working on adaptive challenges and be able to give examples from work experience.
5. Understand the intentional use of the activities of leadership—observe, interpret, and intervene to mobilize adaptive work.

The Dr. Noel R. Peterson Founders Lecture Series is a local forum for healthcare providers and other community members to discuss issues including healthcare reform, bioethics, the impact of philanthropy, and other important issues in healthcare. Prior years' guests include Michael T. Osterholm, PhD, MPH, director of the University of Minnesota's Center for Infectious Disease Research and Policy (national preparedness for dealing with acts of bio-terrorism) and former Minnesota Commissioner of Health Jan Malcolm (healthcare reform).

This is the sixth installment in the Founders Lecture Series, established through an endowment gift from Dr. Noel and Ann Peterson in 2006, and supported by annual gifts from many OMC clinicians, employees, and community supporters.

*A CME forum for updating clinicians and other allied health providers on adaptive leadership and how it applies to problems that challenge us today.

This activity has been planned and implemented in accordance with the Essential Areas and Policies of the Minnesota Medical Association (MMA) through the joint sponsorship of Olmsted Medical Center and OMC Regional Foundation. Olmsted Medical Center is accredited by the MMA to provide continuing medical education for physicians.

Olmsted Medical Center designates this educational activity for a maximum of 1.0 AMA PRA Category 1 credit[™]. Physicians should only claim credit commensurate with the extent of their participation in the activity.
